Arrick has been slowly seducing Mallory over the past few months. She'd hesitantly forgiven him and they were dancing around being a couple yet again. Mallory goes to see Mistress Ariel two times a month and is learning what it means to be a submissive female to a dominate male such as Master Arrick. She has accepted that she likes pain, and that is not a bad thing. Without it, she feels as if she is walking through her life in a semi-numb state of existence. Arrick has been biding his time, sending her gifts and hand written notes and taking her on real dates. He calls it courting her, old school style. She is ready for more, especially the long enforced state of mutual celibacy that Arrick has insisted on. She offers herself to the man she loves, and he takes over as her mentor, dominate, lover and guide in all things BDSM. But Mallory's past life catches up with her, and she is abducted. Arrick hunts for her, intent on killing her captors and saving the woman he loves – but will he find her and save her before it's too late?
