I can remember for years people would gossip. And make fun of me struggling with no funds for my non-profit organizations. They would also blame my struggles as a single mom because I wasn't married. I felt like I was the only one in this world who had hard times to fall on them. My whole life has been a struggle one behind the other. And then one day as time went by. The same people watch and made fun of my hard time, now hard times have hit their home or business. And now ask How did you make it? I wanted to let every person who is now facing hard times, hold your head up and keep going. And don't ever listen to any negative thoughts or people. Things will not always stay the same.
