Corporate tycoon Thomas Redding is dead, murdered by way of antique golf club during his firm's company retreat. His bodyguard, Warren Kingsley, is certain the killer is gunning for him now. With a list of suspects as long as a corporate tax return, and a small town sheriff well over his head in the investigation, Warren knows he has only one option to keep from ending up like his late client: hire his own bodyguard. Together the pair will sift through the evidence—dodging femme fatales, murderous impostors and motivational speakers—eventually uncovering a devious killer; not to mention stumbling on the recipe for the perfect bowl of chowder. Read Double Cover and learn how these two popular supporting characters from The Five Star Detour got their start.
