He made it clear just what he was after... — Maybe everyone else on Lakades, including Kara Lincroft's sister who insisted she visit, thought Aleko Tranakas the perfect antidote for a young widow's loneliness and grief. But not Kara. — She didn't want an affair, least of all with a practiced womanizer whose seductive charms reminded her of her husband. She wouldn't make that mistake again! Despite Aleko's talents for stirring dormant fires, Kara believed that she could spend two weeks on his tiny, enchanted Greek island without falling under his spell and into his bed. How wrong she was...
