In one night he lost everything. She lost the promise of their future. Ashton David lives a tormented life. The Louisiana plantation that once belonged to his father and gleamed like a diamond now stands in ruin. It's drafty, tattered, torn, and haunted. Ashton has tried to walk away many times, but something exists that pulls him back. If she closes her eyes tight, Harmony can remember the Ashton who took her to junior prom. But it's been over a decade and years of grief have left him unable to tolerate the sight of her. The love they shared is now crippled by heartbreak and despair. Everyone in town knows Ashton is unlovable, but Harmony isn't interested in what they have to say. She's back, armed and educated, and she's ready to take on the beast. But even angels become discouraged when left alone to fight demons. Scroll up and grab a copy today.
