Jon is a weaponsmith who yearns to forge the perfect blade. Having learned all he can from his masters back home, he has traveled to the clans of the distant southern mountains. There live the ironmasters, the finest smiths in the world, and keepers of knowledge that Jon hungers to know. Amongst the clans, Jon's dedication earns him respect, and he befriends Arodan, one of the last of the ironmasters and a man embittered by the slow death of his profession. Arodan teaches him many things, and Jon grows to unrivaled mastery of their craft. When he leaves Arodan, Jon has learned all the many secrets of the ironmasters - including some that more suspicious folk might consider sorcerous. Despite Arodan's fervent belief, Jon disregards the old superstitions... even when three clansmen come to him in the wake of a bloody slaughter, hoping to wreak their revenge with weapons of legend.
