Ree Dellinger earned a master's degree in biology studying Blue Jays and is a former science teacher. For over 30 years the author assisted her father in the care of his martin colony and served as a sub-permittee in his decades-long study of martins for the US Bird Banding Laboratory. The pieces of nesting material shown on the book's cover are drawn from items found in the nests of Purple Martins. ...the author hopes that teachers and parents may also use this book as a tool to initiate a discussion with children about safety.
