With a sizable inheritance from her parents, Bonnie is drawn to a large home for sale in a remote southern town. She walks into a new life that promises a polar opposite lifestyle from the bustling city and high profile career as a psychologist to the upper class of New York. Warned to stay away from the haunted estate by the local realtor, Bonnie immediately falls in love with the home that she is determined to bring back to life despite its ominous reputation. By uncovering the past of Gabriella Cruz, a wealthy socialite loved dearly by her community who perished with her husband in a deadly fire, Bonnie discovers deeply buried secrets in this cozy, small town. Embracing Gabriella's past just may save her own life from a family that is lurking, waiting, watching and planning.
