Everyone has their breaking point. Kaitlyn has had a crush on Dr. Logan Matthews for months. His dark hair, blue eyes and fit body are just some of the reasons why he's the perfect guy. The problem is he seems to want nothing to do with Kaitlyn. When they have bumped into each other, he's gruff, overbearing and he seems to cause the worst luck for her. Until one day when everything seems to go unnaturally wrong in her life. Now he's sending naughty pictures, playing with her, and acting more interested than ever. Although her friends find the encounters they've had funny and her best friend tells her to just have fun, there's something confusing about his attention. He says they're just being friendly but they're moving into the "more than friendly" zone. Everything should be great. Right? Things aren't always what people see on the surface. The greatest obstacles they face may be the ones that neither of them see coming. **Full-length standalone romance. 67,000+ words. No cheating, or cliffhangers with a Happily Ever After!
