In spite of a repressive regime and the Cultural Revolution, China's body of believers is perhaps the largest in the world today! Mao's "Cultural Revolution" attempted to wipe out all vestiges of Christianity in China. How did this group of believers not only survive but grow under the intense persecution of a repressive regime? Carl Lawrence lived in Hong Kong and other parts of Asia from 1964 through 1979. He directed thousands of hours of Christian radio programming beamed into Red China. Through contacts with many organizations, the author has been able to gather a wealth of documented information and thrilling testimonies concerning the underground (house) church in China. Students of church-growth and mission strategy will find this a fascinating journey behind the Bamboo Curtain to look at China's Church today.
