Jake's looking forward to his week away, camping alone near a lake in a remote part of the Scottish Highlands. No work to do, no terrible ex to think about... just him and the peace of untouched nature. However, fate has other ideas, and when Jake finds an unconscious man in the woods, he has to decide what to do with him. The man, Tiernay, recovers quickly, and though there's something about him Jake just can't work out, sparks still fly between them. But Tiernay isn't quite what he seems and he's here because he has a job to do, a job that is putting them both in grave danger. Magic in the Highlands is a 15,000-word romantic novella, containing explicit sexual scenes between Jake and his mysterious stranger. HFN ending, contains magic.
