Portland was usually a quiet city, but by the time Spur McCoy rode into town, things were hotter than a pistol. Somebody was passing fake twenties right under the noses of the local law- and every time a phony bill turned up, so did another dead body. Spur was determined to see the murderous snake fill an early grave, and with the help of a brown-haired beauty named Claire, he figured he just might succeed. Whoever was terrorizing Portland may have been a master counterfeiter, but he was up against the real McCoy.
